2022 IN-PERSON SOCIETY MEETINGS RETURN ON APRIL 18th-

Our next speaker is someone well known to our Society and our town for her extensive civic work as well as her ongoing professional and personal efforts in historic architecture and preservation. Past Society President, Margaret Westfield will be telling our group about the latest round of work going on in Margate, NI at the site of the world famous, "Lucy The Elephant". I won't steal Margaret's thunder by telling you here, about the history of the attraction, or of Lucy's long-gone siblings around the world. Suffice it to say, we have a very unique piece of history just 60 miles away.

Because of her long association with this structural pachyderm, the continued restoration has become part of Margaret's legacy. Please come out and hear all about Lucy on the 18th. Who knows...you might be moved to take a drive "Down the shore..." to pay her a visit!

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE - "Spring is painting in daffodil yellows, robin egg blues, new grass green, and the brightness of hope for a better life."-Toni Sorenson. Hopefully as the world begins to get back to normal we will be enjoying visiting family and friends!!!!!

It is with great pleasure that I invite you to the Haddon Heights Historical Society reopening meeting on April 18, 2022. Historic Architect Margaret Westfield will present the history of Lucy the Elephant and her work over three decades restoring and maintaining the six story elephant on the New Jersey Shore. The meeting is at 7pm in the lower level of the Haddon Heights Library. Masks are to be worn unless otherwise indicated by the Library Board. The Haddon Heights Historical Society Board and Trustees are looking forward to seeing all of you!!!!! We have missed all of you.

"From the end springs New Beginnings", is a quote from Pliny the Elder. Our new beginnings will be the exciting new programs we are planning for you in 2022. To New Beginnings,

Elena M. Hill, President

NAMING A TOWN: Submitted by Society member Dr. Gerald Pietsch- Computer research reveals only three US towns named "Haddon"; Haddonfield, Haddon Heights, and Haddon Township. The unique name, Haddon, stems from the late 1600's during English persecution of Quakers. Oppression by citizens and government included destruction of Quaker Meeting Houses in England by the King's army.

John Haddon, a prosperous Quaker blacksmith forging anchors, was among the many subjected to this oppression. William Penn, an acquaintance, urged John to move the new world. Persuaded by the descriptions he heard, John, in 1698, purchased 500 acres in the West Jersey Colony. Unable to travel, John sent his 21 year old daughter Elizabeth in his place. She traveled unescorted on a 6 week trans-Atlantic journey arriving in Philadelphia and then proceeding to her father's land. Elizabeth had been appointed to take option on her father's land and was given power of attorney to conduct all of his business in the colony.

In 1701 Elizabeth settled on John's land where she lived in a small log house. There she established a large farm which she named Haddon Plantation, sometimes referred to as Haddon's field. At that time, large farms were referred as plantations. It should be noted, however, that she did not own slaves.

In 1702, a year after her arrival, Elizabeth married John Estaugh, a Quaker minister and together they successfully ran the plantation. Her husband continued to attend to his sacred mission traveling extensively while Elizabeth remained behind to manage the plantation. Elizabeth and John had no children but raised 5 year old Ebenezer Hopkins making him their heir. Ebenezer was the son of Elizabeth's sister in London.

By 1715 they were sufficiently successful allowing them to build a three story brick house with a stone brewery/still structure behind the home. The new house and farm they named the New Haddon Plantation. John died in 1742 while on a religious visit to the West Indies. After his death, Elizabeth continued managing Haddon Plantation. She became well known for her generosity, discretion, and charity. Elizabeth died in 1764 at the age of 82. She was buried in an unmarked grave in the Burial Grounds of the Religious Society of Friends. In 1842, Elizabeth Haddon's house was destroyed by fire. The stone brew/still house exists to this day on Wood Lane in Haddonfield.

Elizabeth Haddon's name has not been lost to time, rather it exists to this day in towns named Haddon. Over the years, as land was settled and population increased, it became necessary to establish new towns. Among these was Haddon Heights incorporated in 1904, so named because it was contiguous with Haddonfield and had a relatively high elevation compared to the surrounding area. Haddon Heights, Haddonfield, and Haddon Township all honor the memory of an early pioneer woman who came alone to the new world and became a leader who was highly respected in the community and surrounding areas.

VOLUNTEERS STILL NEEDED FOR THE BOARD- See the last page for information about the openings on the Historical Society's Committees. We need a few folks to step forward and lend a hand as we gear back up to full operational mode. No prior experience necessary. Minimal time requirements. Reach out to any Board Member for information or to volunteer.

"GO TO JAIL. DO NOT PASS 'GO'. DO NOT COLLECT $200"- Do I have your attention? I recently visited the Eastern State Penitentiary in Philadelphia (as a guest, not an inmate). Wow! What an amazing place. There is so much history there to see and experience. It is located in the Fairmount section of the city at 2027 Fairmount Ave. Here are some fun facts: It was the first true Penitentiary, a building designed to inspire penitence or true regret in the hearts of its prisoners, instead of focusing on punishment for their crimes. Eastern State was the "model" for prisons across the country and in Europe for many decades after its opening

Each cell had a skylight and the design featured a central hub with cell blocks fanning out like a wagon wheel so guards could look down each hallway from their desks. Some famous prisoners were bank robber "Slick Willie" Sutton, and Al Capone. Because the penitentiary is being maintained in its deteriorated or "ruin" condition, many windows are missing and hallways are open to the elements. I highly recommend a visit to see this monumental building that changed the face of prisons. For information you can visit www.EasternState.com, or call 215-236-3300.
